Nebraska Wesleyan University

EDUC 228 Methods for Teaching Science in Middle and Secondary Schools

Catalog

2013-2014

Course Description

The study and use of teaching methods and models in middle and secondary schools and their application to the learning styles of these age groups. Includes an examination of various science curriculum programs, laboratory safety procedures, and the selection and organization of content and teaching materials.

Prerequisite(s): Acceptance into the Teacher Education Program or permission of the department chair.

Course Hours

3 hours

Departments

1. Education