Nebraska Wesleyan University

FORSC 4740 Threat Assessment

Catalog

2016-2017

Course Description

Threat assessment refers to the determination of risk posed by individuals or groups against specified targets or institutions. The course examines the types of threats commonly encountered in law enforcement situations and the characteristics of approach (i.e., individuals likely to engage in threatening or disruptive face-to-face contact) vs. non-approach situations. The course examines the information used to process these risk determinations. The course will also examine the way we view and perceive threats including stalking, workplace, and school violence.

Course Hours

1 hour

Departments

1. Forensic Science