Nebraska Wesleyan University

SOC 230 Social Change and Social Movements

Catalog

2013-2014

Course Description

This course examines the processes of social change from a sociological perspective. In particular, it looks at the origins, dynamics, and consequences of social movements such as the labor movement, civil rights, feminism, gay rights, and the environmental movement. Social movements emphasized vary with instructor.

Prerequisite(s): SOC 003 Introduction to Sociology or SOC 004 Social Problems.

(Normally offered alternate years.)

Course Hours

3 hours

Departments

1. Sociology and Anthropology