ENG 2000 Introduction to Textual Studies

Catalog

2016-2017

Course Description

This course will introduce new English majors and minors to the critical methodologies, concepts, and terminology needed for the analysis and discussion of literature and other cultural texts and to the kinds of research and scholarship they will be asked to do in their later coursework. Students will also learn about a range of career paths open to those with a background in English. (Normally offered every spring semester.)
