Globalization

Catalog

2016-2017

Program Description

Students in the Globalization thread explore contemporary international issues by analyzing global and transnational forces and the interconnectedness of states, cultures, ethnicities and people. The thread examines power relations within and across borders and addresses challenges to the traditional nation-state. Students consider concepts of globalization and global citizenship through media, arts, language, economics, history, and politics.

This thread is 9 hours.

Students must take courses from at least two course levels: 1000, 2000, 3000, 4000.
Courses must be from a minimum of two disciplines.
