

Course:

MLANG 3010 Preparing For Education Abroad

1 hours

Majors, Minors & Degrees:

Majors

Modern Language Studies (B.A.)

Departments/Programs:

Modern Languages

This course is designed to prepare students who are considering or planning to go abroad for study, work, or volunteer/service learning by investigating the many facets of facing life in another culture. Topics to be covered include intercultural communication, cross-cultural value systems, foreign academic systems, cultural self-awareness, and challenges and opportunities that are unique to language-learning abroad. This course will give students the tools to make their experience more successful and rewarding. The course is designed for both the student who has already applied for a program and for the student just beginning to explore the idea of going abroad. P/F only. Offered every semester.