Music

Catalog

2024-2025

About the Program

The Music department nurtures the performance and inquiry of students and faculty; and educates students to excel in active roles in professional life and the community through integration and specialization, while emphasizing the values of meaningful creativity and cultural context.

Department Learning Outcomes
Majors will be able to:

1. Develop degree-appropriate proficiency in music performance.
2. Develop skills in music theory and aural perception.
3. Develop research skills (musicology/ethnomusicology) in cultural (past and present) intersections of music, interdisciplinary intersections of music, and synthesis (combine ideas to form a product, theory, or system).
4. Develop skills in written and oral communication with the discipline of music.

General Information

Admission to status as a music major is by audition.

The music programs are accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music:

National Association of Schools of Music

Ensembles

Each music major must participate in a primary large ensemble (see list below) each semester in residence. Assignment to a specific ensemble is made by the Director of Choral Activities for choral ensembles or the Director of Instrumental Studies for instrumental ensembles, in consultation with the department chair. Participation in two ensembles may be required, according to the student's educational plan. Any variation from these policies must be approved by the department chair.

Students participating in any ensemble must register for the courses. Courses may be repeated. Music Education and Music Performance majors must register for their primary ensemble for 1 credit. Students who are pursuing a Bachelor of Arts in Music may register for their primary ensemble for either 0 or 1 credit. Non-music majors may register for ensembles for either 0 or 1 credit. Ensembles may not be taken Pass/Fail.

Large Ensembles:

- MUSIC 1020 University Choir
- MUSIC 1030 University Orchestra (Lincoln Civic Orchestra) [fulfills large ensemble requirement for strings majors]
- MUSIC 1040 Symphonic Band

Small/Chamber Ensembles:

- MUSIC 1070 Chamber Music Ensembles
- MUSIC 1080 Jazz Choir
- MUSIC 1090 Prairie Wolves Pep Band
- MUSIC 1100 Jazz Ensemble
- MUSIC 1110 Opera Workshop

- MUSIC 1120 Opera Production
- MUSIC 1130 Chamber Singers

Recital Attendance

Experiencing a variety of live music is a vital part of one's education as a musician. Music majors must enroll in and pass MUSIC 1000 Recitals, every semester in residence, with the exception of the semester of student teaching. Details about MUSIC 1000 can be found in the Music Major Handbook.

Recitals and Concerts

Candidates for the Bachelor of Music degree (Music Performance) are required to perform a partial or full recital in the junior year and a full recital in the senior year. Candidates for the Bachelor of Music degree (Music Education) are required to perform a partial or full recital in the senior year in addition to successful completion of student teaching. Bachelor of Arts candidates are required to present a partial or full recital in the senior year. With permission of the music faculty, Bachelor of Arts candidates may substitute a senior research project for the senior recital. Students must enroll in the appropriate applied music course for their major every semester until their senior recital requirement is completed. Permission for any student recital must be received from the music office and is contingent upon a satisfactory hearing by the recital jury committee. In addition to formal concerts and recitals by student soloists and university ensembles, the department presents opera and opera workshop performances, department student recitals, and faculty solo and chamber music concerts.

Piano Proficiency

All music majors must pass a piano proficiency examination. Piano Proficiency and Piano Proficiency Labs (MUSIC 1510/MUSIC 1510L or MUSIC 1520/MUSIC 1520L) must be taken each semester of full-time enrollment until the examination is passed. Any exception, allowing completion of the piano proficiency requirement through enrollment in applied piano lessons instead of enrollment in Piano Proficiency/Piano Proficiency Labs, is at the discretion of the deparement chair in consultation with the piano faculty. Music education majors must pass piano proficiency before taking MUSIC 3530 Secondary Instrumental Methods, MUSIC 3540 Elementary General Music Methods,or MUSIC 3550 Secondary Vocal Music Methods.

Techniques Courses

Music Education majors must take and pass techniques courses in the areas listed with the requirements for each major emphasis. Students may request to demonstrate proficiency in a techniques course by passing an examination with the appropriate area faculty, in consultation with the department chair. All techniques courses must be completed before enrolling for student teaching. Any exceptions to these policies must be approved by the department chair.

Student Teaching Prerequisites

Before enrolling in student teaching, all music education students must have successfully completed the appropriate method and technique courses in their degree program. Music education students must also complete 100 hours of field experience, pass the Pre-Professional Skills Test (PPST), and be accepted into the Teacher Education Program (TEP).

Applied Music

The term "applied music" refers to private instruction in any instrument (including voice). Primary consideration is given to the principles of performance and literature of that instrument. All music majors, regardless of the degree program, must designate a major instrument. Applied music may not be taken Pass/Fail. Students pursuing the Bachelor of Music degree with a music performance major must carry 2 credit hours (60 minutes of instruction per week) in their major instrument for every semester in residence. Music Education and BA students must carry 1 credit hour (60 minutes of instruction per week) in their major instrument for every semester in residence. Any exceptions must be approved by the department chair.

Credit: Credit for applied music instruction is given as follows:

- 2 credit hours (major instrument only), for 60 minutes of instruction per week. A minimum of three hours daily practice and participation in department recitals are required.
- 1 credit hour (secondary instrument or non-music majors) for 30 minutes of instruction per week. Two hours daily practice is required.

Registration: Students may register for one of four levels in applied music courses, numbered as follows:

- 1200-1380: All first-year students or any other students registering for the first or second semester of an instrument except by permission of the department chair.
- 2200-2380: Any student registering for the third or fourth semester of an instrument.
- 3200-3380: Any student registering for the fifth or sixth semester of an instrument.
- 4200-4380: Any student registering for the seventh or eighth semester of an instrument.

Courses may be repeated. No Pass/Fail. Prerequisite: Music majors must have completed the sophomore interview in order to enroll in Music 3200-3380.

MUSIC 1140 Cover Band/Rock Band

3 hours

In this Creative and Performing Arts Elective course that is situated within the Chaos Thread, students will develop skills necessary to learn how to play an instrument or sing, and to create their own arrangements and compositions within small student-led groups. This course is designed for students with little to no formal musical training to learn how to create their own music using informal music learning methods â?? methods that are not always acknowledged as having merit both in process and in genre, especially within the area of academic music. The teacher will act as a facilitator of space and at times a coach, mentor, or apprentice as appropriate so that students drive the learning and the creating of their own music to the end of performing and/or recording it. The assigned readings, class discussion, and studentsâ?? musical creations will focus on the radical differences between the formal music learning practices done in classrooms and the informal music learning practices used by many musicians outside of the formal classroom setting. There are no pre-requisites to take this course. Students will be learning to play instruments and using electronic software; students can use their own instruments and electronics as appropriate to the course projects, but materials will be provided as needed.
(Normally offered each spring semester.)

MUSIC 1150 World Music Drumming

3 hours

Course for students with little or no musical background. Students will develop skills necessary to learn how to play in a group drumming ensemble, which will include drum circles, ukuleles, barred mallet instruments, and other auxiliary percussion instruments. The course will focus primarily on African culture; and emphasis may also be given to Caribbean, South American, and other cultures. Through the musical experiences, assigned readings, class discussion, and performances, students will develop a greater appreciation of our global society and a deeper understanding of the diverse nature of their world, which will allow for movement toward social justice. There are no prerequisites to take this course. Materials will be provided as needed.

MUSIC 1160 Composing for Film and Video Game

3 hours

This Creative and Performing Arts Elective course introduces students to the process of composing music for visula media. Students will view, analyze, and discuss scenes from multiple films and video games in order to identify features of a scene's character. They will then use these characteristics as the basis for creating supportive musical expression in their own composition. Students will be introduced to the process of synchronizing music to picture, develop rudimentary creative and technical skills in editing audio, and explore ways to compose music using digital audio technology. There are no prerequisites to take this course. While formal musical training can be helpful, this course is designed to accommodate students with minimal musical experience. Students will learn to manipulate already formed samples and loops that accompany Digial Audio Workstation (DAW) software, while also learning how to mix these sounds with music they create using Midi instruments and audio files.

MUSIC 2610 Music Theory III

3 hours

Seventh chords, including the diminished seventh chord; various types of modulation; introduction of secondary dominants; analysis and writing of the period, binary, and ternary song forms; choral harmonization; and modal scales.
Prerequisite(s): MUSIC 1630 Music Theory II or permission of the instructor.

MUSIC 2620 Musicianship III

1 hour

A review of advanced sight-reading and ear training, drills in more complex rhythmic and melodic materials including chromatic formations, and increased emphasis on individual part-singing and harmonic dictation.
Prerequisite(s): MUSIC 1630 Music Theory II and MUSIC 1640 Musicianship II or permission of the instructor.
Corequisite(s): MUSIC 2610 Music Theory III.

MUSIC 2630 Music Theory IV

3 hours

This course examines the development of new concepts and theories of music that led to significant departures from standard musical practices and ideals. Students will explore twentieth century pitch resources, and contrast late tonal techniques and styles of composers such as Debussy, Ives, Messiaen, Stravinsky, Schoenberg, Webern and more. Analysis of specific works will promote discussions, tracing theoretical paths that led to the development of post tonal and avant-garde music. The content is designed to:

1. Widen your knowledge of, appreciation for, and ability to identify, describe, and critically assess musical works in light of the innovative ideas that led to their creation.
2. Give you a sophisticated understanding of the cultural, aesthetic, and stylistic relevance of these works in order to better comprehend the historical impact of radical departures from the norm.
3. To practically apply your knowledge of musical elements in order to create informed and appropriate musical interpretations within the body of music that forms your own repertoire.
4. To introduce you to the oral expression of your music in the style of a professional lecture presentation, so that you can improve your skills in verbally describing music and musical analysis.

Prerequisite(s): MUSIC 2610 Music Theory III or permission of the instructor.

MUSIC 2640 Musicianship IV

1 hour

This course focuses on advanced concepts of analytical listening. Relying on established practices, the student will learn how to make sense of intricate and advanced musical concepts by creating a connection between aural processes and the studentâ??s developed understanding of musical events. Topics in this class include demonstrating increasing fluency with 20th century tonalities such as modal, pentatonic, and octatonic scales, identifying tri-chord pitch-class sets, navigating exercises that modulate to distantly related keys through chromatic relationships, and auralizing advanced perceptual awareness of non-diatonic and post-tonal musical structures. Studentâ??s will focus their efforts on two subdivisions that highlight important areas of skill development â?? aural acuity in recognizing advanced structures in order to identify their function in increasingly chromatic and post tonal music, and the ability to demonstrate this both through oral expression in performance and written notation of cognitively recalled exercises.
Prerequisite(s): MUSIC 2610 Music Theory III and MUSIC 2620 Musicianship III or permission of the instructor.
Corequisite(s): MUSIC 2630 Music Theory IV.

MUSIC 2700 Computers and Technology for the Musician and the Music Educator

2 hours

The course is offered to explore the essential topics a musician should consider when using computers and technology - whether for the purpose of listening, performing, composing, or teaching. Covering subjects ranging from music CAI (Computer Assisted Instruction) and desktop publishing to notation sequencing and MIDI and multimedia and CD audio, this course is designed as an introductory undergraduate course devoted to computers as applied to music technology for the musician and music educator.

MUSIC 2710 Music Prod W/digital Audio Workstations

3 hours

This is a 3-credit Creative and Performing Arts Elective course, designated Exploratory Experiential Learning, situated in the Innovation thread for all students, regardless of prior musical experience. In this project-based class, you will learn the capabilities of a Digital Audio Workstation (DAW) as you go through the process of creating music for different scenarios. You as the student will drive the learning and the creating of your own music and the teacher will act as a facilitator or coach toward the end goal of musical production. There are no prerequisites to take this course. You will need your own computer for this course (either Mac or PC is fine). Smart phones and tablets do not count. Other electronics, instruments, and materials will be provided as needed.

MUSIC 2720 Resilience and Wellbeing

4 hours

In a learning community that seeks to understand and work toward equity, this course explores the relationship between music and research on resilience and wellbeing. How do we build and practice resilience (and therefore wellbeing) as we learn how to notice and work through challenges, obstacles, and failures in our learning and living? What music helps us cultivate resilience, wellbeing, and continue to explore the paths of our life's work?

MUSIC 2810 World Music Cultures

3 hours

Key cultural concepts are used to explore music from selected global case studies. Social, cultural, and historical contexts are examined in relation to musical materials and their application in various traditions and repertoires. The fieldwork project (and experiential learning component) for this class requires some off-campus activities to be arranged by the student.

MUSIC 2830 Music History I: Gender Equity

4 hours

Students learn and apply information from music, history, culture, and gender studies. Honoring the relationship between past and present, we explore systems of privilege and oppression associated with the intersection of gender, sexualities, race, socio-economic status, and other markers of identity. Since music intersects with all fields of study, students select their in-roads based on their majors, minors, passions, and vocation. This course examines foundational concepts and genres from the Medieval through Baroque periods of the music history survey. Students develop and apply music research skills in historical social/cultural context and current published scholarship. 3000-level course has additional requirements. Please consult with the instructor.

MUSIC 2860 Music History II: Racial Equity

4 hours

This course builds on the foundation of the Equal Justice Initiative's work of truth-telling and reckoning about racial injustice, so that the U.S. can move toward healing and repair. We don't have to hide our present legacy of racial difference built during our past. We can confront it, reconcile, and build equity. How does racism operate in music and culture? Students will conduct research in music studies and racial justice and build skills to do the leadership work of antiracist equity. Since music intersects with all fields of study, students select their in-roads based on their majors, minors, passions, and vocation. This course examines foundational concepts and genres from the Classic through Contemporary periods of the music history survey. MUSIC 3530 Secondary Instrumental Methods

This course is designed to prepare students for teaching instrumental music in late elementary, middle and senior high school. Students will develop knowledge, skills and techniques for planning, delivering, and evaluating music instruction; organizing and administering an instrumental music program; and curriculum development, material selection, rehearsal procedures, and the philosophy of instrumental music teaching. Students must sign up for one of the labs associated with this course.
Prerequisite(s): Acceptance in the Teacher Education Program or by permission of the chair of the Department of Education. Must have passed piano proficiency and PPST exam.
Corequisite(s): MUSIC 3530L Secondary Instrumental Methods Lab.
(Normally offered each fall semester.)

MUSIC 3530L Secondary Instrumental Methods Lab

0 hours

Students will have been placed by the instructor into a secondary instrumental music classroom in a public school by the first week of class. Students will complete a minimum of 20 hours of observation and teaching over the course of the semester at their placement site. Typically, students visit the classroom for approximately two hours per week. It is anticipated that the hours are completed throughout the entire semester, so students should plan to continue going to their placements for the entire semester even if they complete the 20 hours early in the semester. May be repeated. P/F Only.
Pre or corequisite(s): MUSIC 3530 Secondary Instrumental Methods.

MUSIC 3540 Elementary General Music Methods

3 hours

This course is designed to help preservice music teachers develop ways of thinking about music teaching and learning that will serve them throughout their careers as music educators. Specifically, students will develop knowledge, skills and techniques for planning, delivering, and evaluating music instruction for children. Although the specific focus of this course is children ages PK-8th grade, many of the principles of teaching and learning apply to younger and older learners. During this course, students will develop habits of thinking and practice that are expected of professionals in music education.
Prerequisite(s): Acceptance in the Teacher Education Program or by permission of the chair of the Department of Education. Must have passed piano proficiency and PPST exam.
Corequisite(s): MUSIC 3540L Elementary General Music Methods Lab.
