Nebraska Wesleyan University

SOC 3140 Protests & Social Movements

Catalog

2025-2026

Course Description

This course examines the processes of social change from a sociological perspective. In particular, it looks at the origins, dynamics, and consequences of protests and social movements such as the labor movement, civil rights, feminism, disability rights, LGBTQ+ rights, and environmental movements. Social movements emphasized vary with instructor.

Course Hours

4 hours

Departments

1. Sociology